Teachers Attend School Institute

On Friday last week the Gleichen teachers attended a Bow Valley Institute at Cluny. As this was the first meeting of the school year, the morning was devoted to problems of a school organization and administration. In the afternoon the Senior and Elementary groups met separately. The High School group discussed the proposed changes in the High School curriculum. The Elementary group under the leadership of Mrs. Bain, dealt with the problems of new teachers. Institutes are organized by the superintendent, Mr. Larson. It is hoped to have four Institutes during the year, alternately on Fridays and Saturdays. The A.T.A. met at four o'clock to elect officers for the coming year. Mr. Smith, Mrs. Sherbrook, and Mrs. Wallace were elected to the new executive. The A.T.A. meeting was in progress. Mr. Larson held conferences with individual teachers, who had special problems.

PROTECTING A LARGE INVESTMENT

Farmers today are faced with the necessity of allocating a fairly large proportion of their total farm investment for necessary machinery and equipment. This fact is clearly illustrated by the increase in the number of tractors, combines, and pick-up balers now in use. Accurate estimates reveal that during the past 10 years, tractor populations have trebled; the number of combines in use have nearly five times; and pick-up baler sales have increased from nearly nothing to about 10,000.

The large investment involved makes it advisable to consider adequate measures for the protection of the equipment. Protection against unnecessary rapid deterioration can be obtained by two major steps. First, machinery should be inspected for repairs that will need replacement before another season rolls around. These repair parts should be ordered well in advance as assurance that the machine will be ready when required. Incidentally this helps the dealer to make provision for adequate seasonal repair stocks.

The second step is adequate protection of rubber tires, unpainted metal parts, and wooded parts from the ravages of natural weathering. In many cases the provision of adequate storage facilities may not be possible or advisable. However, the use of paint, rustproofing materials, and protective paints or covers for rubber can be readily utilized by all operators.

Rustproofing compounds properly applied to shiny metal surfaces have proven protection to metal for periods exceeding 12 months at the experimental station. Heavy gun grease will give protection for period up to three or four months. Used oil will provide protection only for a very short period.

Equipment mounted on rubber can be checked up and the tires painted or protected from sunshine, excess moisture, and grease by a preservative paint or canvas cover.

The time required to properly condition equipment for storage is not great and in view of the fact that the money would appear to be well worth while.

WEDDING

HASKAYNE-DICK

New Jerusalem Church, Sunnyslope, was the scene of a pretty wedding when Miss Amy Louise Dick exchanged vows with Mr. Stanley Haskayne, both of Red Deer. Rev. P. Peters performed the ceremony for the youngest daughter of Mrs. Mary Dick and the nephew of Mr. R. S. Haskayne, of Gleichen. Gladoli and sisters decorated the church and the guest pewers were marked with pink and white ribbons.

Given in marriage by her brother, Carl Clifford Dick of Sunnyslope, the bride was "given away" by her mother, Mrs. Dick, in satin and styled with light fitting bodice buttoned down the back, full skirt and tulle point sleeves. Her fingertip veil of French illusion was edged in Chantilly lace and held in place by a poke made of satin and pleated netting. Her bouquet was red roses centering, white gladioli and she wore a rhinestone necklace and earrings and wrist. Gifts of the groom. Attended guests were: Miss Louise Marie Reddick and Miss Florence Isobel Reddick as bridesmaids and little Paddy Woodrow of Red Deer or flower girl. Miss Louise Reddick wore a mauve taffeta gown, chapel veil, and carried yellow carnations. Miss Florence Reddick wore green taffeta, chapel veil and pink carnations. The flower girl was dressed in yellow net over tulle, with a headband of yellow daisies and carried a basket of yellow daisies tied with mauve ribbon.

Mr. Edmund Haskayne, of Calgary, surprised his brother-in-law best man, with Mr. Vernon Milligan of Sunnyslope, was usher. The music was played by Mrs. Matti Loeck and soloist, Mr. Robert Layden, of Red Deer, sang "I'll Walk Beside You."

"After the ceremony a reception for more than 100 guests was held at the Sunnyslope Church, with members of the Women's Auxiliary catering. Mr. E. Reddick of Yorkton, Sask., presented the toast to the bride. After a honeymoon in Montana and the western states the newlyweds will live in Red Deer. Five telegrams from England were read at the reception.

Among the out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Haskayne, Mr. Dick Haskayne, Mr. and Mrs. H. James, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Haskayne, all of Gleichen.

When Bill Schmidt of the local Sales and Service business does any thing it is usually in a big way. This spring he went into the potato business on a grand scale—not in the area planted but in the size of spuds grown. Monday he came into this with two giant potatoes. Measuring around end to end they were 18 inches; while it took 13 inches of tape to go around the waist. Bill did not say how heavy they were. He informed us he had more that were bigger than these. When the stems are pulled using the spuds come with it.

To a number of motor vehicles travelling the roads these nights that have but one light working seem to be on the increase. This is dangerous practice and it is not expensive to replace or repair the damaged light, thus protecting the driver as well as showing common courtesy to the other drivers.

COMBINING UNRIPE CROPS

Ideal harpington weather prevailed for a time in August with the lawless winds of this present splendid crop. Unfortunately, towards the end of August, rains occurred and have been falling intermittently in most areas ever since. Farmers, fearful of a recurrence of last year when snow stopped all harvesting until the following spring have been, seems, over-anxious to cut their grain. The consequence is that much grain has been combined slightly on the green side and although dry was not fully mature. After awhile this immature grain, it is found, starts to heat, both in elevator bins and in farmers granaries on the farm. The condition will get worse with such combined grain as time goes on. It is important Elizabeth Long, supervisor of Women's Interests for CBC, has announced the opening of a new series of 45 minute programs entitled "Trans-Canada Matinee. The first program will be presented Sept. 29th.

The Law Alone Cannot Do It

The law can compel the business man to keep his premises clean and sanitary; but it can't compel him to keep them bright and attractive. It can compel him to sell his wares at certain prices; but it can't compel him to find better values for his money and to give his customers the benefit of his enterprise.

It can compel him to stand up for the goods he sells and guarantee their quality; but it can't compel him to search the world for more suitable and more attractive goods.

It can compel him to give honest weight and the correct change; but it can't compel him to give extra service or courteous treatment or helpful hints, for nothing.

Yet in stores and offices and factories all over the country we see these things that the law can't compel him to do, being done voluntarily by all sorts of people.

What is the compelling motive, the spur that drives men to do these things?

It is the certain knowledge that if they don't do it somebody else will, and that those who do it best will get the most business. It is the competitive system, the system so loudly condemned by those who believe in a planned economy with the police to tell us what we must do, and to see that we do it.

Some city papers are worried about child labor on the farms. They are afraid it will have an adverse effect on the education, and the future preservation of the children. Our observation is that lack of some useful work to do among city children is a greater threat to their education, their future prospects and their moral characters than child labor on the farm ever was or ever is likely to be.

DEPARTMENT OF LABOUR

HERE AND THERE

Rogowski, C. P. R. roadmaster, has purchased Mrs. B. Desjardins' residence. Mr. Rogowski was for some years section foreman here and after being appointed roadmaster made his home at Shepard. He has been transferred to Gleichen and will move his family to town shortly. Mrs. Desjardins with her children will move to Calgary where they will in future reside.

Dick Haskayne and Larry Plante were called to Medicine Hat last week to attend a hockey school being conducted in that city. These two boys were star players on the local hockey team last winter. The Medicine Hat Junior hockey team, the Tigers, is going far afield for players to bolster their team. If the two Gleichen boys make it's a grade and get on the Hat team that outfit should go a long way in hockey next winter.

The local Chamber of Commerce is staging a Square Dance Competition on the evening of Friday, September 20 in the Recreation Centre. The big prize is $40 for those who can do the square dance best, prize being offered for the best dressed square; a prize for the couple who waits in the old time style best. There will be a door prize. This prize means you have a chance of getting something whether you dance or not. The square dance contest begins at 8 o'clock.

Now is a good time to take a glance over your backyards and devise some plan to obstruct the fruit cans and rubbish which have accumulated since the last installation was removed. You can generally judge of the occupants of a house by the condition in which the front and back yards are kept. In a general sense we all pride ourselves on being clean and tidy. Home and its surroundings above all places in the world should be guarded against contaminating influences.

Governments are charged by elections, but electors change little and very slowly. The greatest obstacle to peace and prosperity among the free nations of the world is the unwillingness of United States farmers, organized workers and some industries to exchange the products of their labor for the products of other workers in other countries. Millions of people who like the United States and who are strong for Adlai do not like and will not stand for the importation of goods and services from other countries, even though it is only by selling goods and services to the United States that NATO countries can repay their loans and finance the common defense. The reality of U. S. isolationism is not dispelled by the platitudes of political parties nor by the good intentions of political leaders. The broader trade policies of the Truman administration, which the president fostered in sincerity, were repudiated by a Democratic congress.
